† ☾ - Full Moon in Libra

♈ ☿ ☿ - Uranus + Venus in Gemini

♈ - New Moon, Mars + Mercury in Aries

♉ ☼ - Sun in Taurus

There's so much in Aries atm which is a hell YES for fresh starts and moving ahead with things.

You might feel a bit of a tug of war with a lot of Taurus still in the mix, which wants everything done solidly from the ground up FIRST.

That's good though.

We need foundations sorted. Otherwise we'll just rush in and build our next life-switch up using paperclips + duck tape.

Saturn's prime position this month will help us out with that. Pacing baby.

Uranus is finally moving in to Gemini on April 24th after 8 years of being in Taurus.... which always coincides with volatile financial markets, unpredictable food production, intense + destructive earth activity etc = hello!!).

Uranus in Gemini will no doubt ramp up AI like its no one's business, which to be honest, I think will end up being a good thing - because we'll get so effing sick of it and naturally start making really cool, innovative HUMAN based stuff again.

Later down the line, anything from human hands / brains will become 10000% more valuable than we've seen in decades ... centuries perhaps.

It's my belief that the pendulum will have no choice but to swing back. Nature always wins, because we are closer to nature than we are to AI, and nature fundamentally lives outside of this 'matrix'.

(highly recommend reading Exit The Cave by Howdi Mickoski in relation to such matrix subjects - brain explosion of insight).

I suspect that with all this Aries focus - while yes - the heartbreaking things happening in the world won't get any quieter or less WTF - many more will be feeling a sudden wave of courage (and self-respect) to finally say 'NO' to whatever manipulation techniques the oligarchs are spouting on the current world stage.

That 'NO' can also include to the gremlins in our minds that have held us back in life.

We're being squeezed through a very, very specific birth canal right now. This won't be forever even if it feels that way.

Continue prioritising movement, belly breathes and body-based activities throughout the day to keep yourself strong and grounded through the madness.

Sending you all the love + power

TUNE IN + HARMONIZE

THE POWER OF GEOMETRY.

I create these monthly Astroc0des as a shared reference point. Something to orient yourself to as you move through the current cycle.

A personal Astroc0de is different. It's something I draw specifically for your body and your life path that can orient you at any point in time.

Way before language, humans used pattern, symbol, sound and rhythm to understand themselves and the larger arc of life. Through stars, seasons, spirals in plants, sacred proportion in temples...your body still understands that language, even if your mind has forgotten.

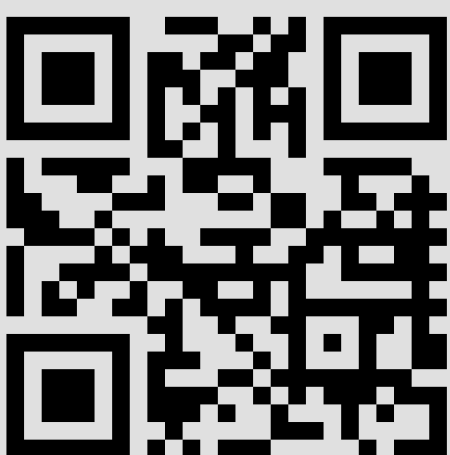

That's why Astroc0des are structured the way they are. Symmetrical, balanced and drawn from a single central point. Because the nervous system responds instinctively to spacing, ratio and harmony. Geometry literally tells the body it's safe to settle.

When you look at your Astroc0de, something ancient in you lines up and says, "yes...finally...I'm here".

I draw each c0de once, meticulously by hand, from your birth chart and specific frequency. It's a visual reset magnet you can return to again and again, without needing to do anything.

If you're feeling the pull to your own Astroc0de, 2026 is an extremely potent window to start working with yourself in this way.
